After 5 years at San Diego State College, I graduated with a degree in Mathematics. I joined the Navy and among other places, I was sent to Iceland. I spent a wonderful year there and I have life long friends from there. Six years later, I was out of the Navy and back in San Diego. I got a teaching credential at San Diego State University and began a 30-year career teaching mathematics, mostly at Point Loma High School.

Once I had a stable job, I married Lu Ann and we raised two daughters. Our adventures include two trips to the top of Half Dome in Yosemite, driving trips all over the U.S., tours of Great Britain and Scandinavia, and a cruise to Alaska. In 2006, I retired.

My current interests include reading for the visually impaired with the Radio Reading Service at KPBS on the campus of SDSU. I am the Genealogy Chairman for Clan MacAlister Society. I write a column for our international newsletter and attend Scottish Highland Games throughout California. Within a month of our reunion, I will have attended my second Games in Scotland. Also, Aztec basketball is big and we have been season ticket holders since the on campus arena opened in 1979.
