The last 50 years seem like a big blur, and they will probably keep getting blurrier as I get older! I do remember that I have been married to my second husband, Greg, for 37 years. We do not have any children together, but he has two by a previous marriage, and I have one son by a previous marriage. All together we have 9 Grand-children – 7 living in the San Diego area, and 2 living here. We've lived in Kentucky, Indiana, Michigan, New York, Louisiana, and were living in Encinitas from 1985-1991, when Greg's job (engineering consultant) took us to the state of Washington. My son and his family live here, so we decided to stay and retire here. We live in the desert area of Southeastern Washington, where the hills are studded with sage-brush, and the tumbleweeds blow through town during frequent windstorms. The saving grace is that three big rivers flow through our town – the mighty Columbia, and the conflux of the Snake and Yakima rivers. We spend our summers boating on these rivers and exploring the lakes of the Pacific Northwest with our 23' SeaRay. Due to the rivers, and the rich volcanic soils of the Yakima valley, there are over 300 vineyards/wineries between the towns of Walla Walla, 50 miles to the east, through the Tri-City area where we live (Richland/Kennewick/Pasco), and the town of Yakima about 100 miles west. We're both retired, so you can guess how we spend many of our days! I have been an elementary school teacher, a yoga instructor, an administrative assistant, and a "domestic engineer" (housewife).
